

Friends of the Memorial

Do you believe in the purpose of the Pittsburg State University Veterans Memorial – to honor those who have served this country through military service?

Do you, like so many others who have visited the PSU Veterans Memorial, consider it to be “a very special place?”

Do you want to have an opportunity to provide input into future programming at the Memorial?

If you answered yes to any of the above, then you should join the Friends of the Memorial

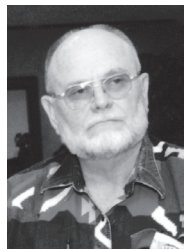

The final notes of Taps have been played, the smoke from the cannons have cleared from the grounds of the Pittsburg State University Veterans Memorial. Thousands of men, women, and children have stood in chilling silence in front of the black panels and reflected on what it means to serve in the United States military. The question then becomes... What now?

Answering that question is a group of individuals who view the Veterans Memorial as a special place where people will gather to remember those who served. These same individuals view the PSU Veterans Memorial as a valuable tool that can be used to educate those who remained behind and the generations to come about the role and value of military service in this country’s history and development.

John Devitt

These concerned individuals, led by Larry Salzman, Girard, Kan., and John Devitt, San Jose, Calif., see the need for ongoing programming at the Memorial to ensure that the message of duty and honor is heard for decades to come and that the full effect of the project is felt by all who walk through the massive entrance portals. This special group understands that the PSU Veterans Memorial is a living tribute, something that must be cared for and nurtured over time.

Larry Salzman

If you too feel a responsibility for the care and development of this amazing facility and the message that it conveys to generations of visitors, then joining the Friends of the Memorial group is the next step.

For an annual investment of $25, you and your fellow Friends will play an important role in ensuring that the PSU Veterans Memorial serves the university, the community and the people of the region as a hub of activity focused on honoring those men and women who served this country through military service.

For all those who ask “What now?” the answer is obvious. Join the Friends of the Memorial and become a part of what will make this project a national symbol of pride and honor. What now? Join the Friends of the Memorial by completing the form below and join the university and other individuals who share a similar vision for this magnificent tribute to veterans.
